Day of the Dead

Day of the Dead

Day of the Dead is a Mexican holiday celebrated October 31st through November 2nd. This holiday comes from the Aztec Natives. People have been celebrating this holiday for at least 3,000 years. On this day, there are celebrations to remember family members and friends who have died. There are festivals and parades. People pray for their deceased loved ones. Family members bring gifts to graves. Some gifts include sugar skulls, marigolds and food. People believe that the souls of their loved ones visit them during this holiday. The souls hear their loved one's prayers. Day of the Dead celebrations are fun and lighthearted. Mexican culture sees death as natural. They do not mourn the deceased.

Symbols

Skull

The skull is one of the most common symbols for the Day of the Dead. People wear skull masks. People eat sugar skull candies. Skull dolls are used to decorate everywhere. These skulls are not meant to be scary.

Halloween

Halloween

Halloween is a holiday that is celebrated on October 31st. Even though Halloween is celebrated in different ways around the world, Halloween is mainly popular in the United States. Halloween originated from the Catholic holiday All Saints Day, which is celebrated on November 1st. Traditionally, this day was to remember the deceased. Today, Halloween is celebrated with parties and trick-or-treating. Trick-or-treating is when children go from house to house asking for treats. When children ask trick-or-treat?, this means if a treat is not given, the child will cause mischief, or a trick. Today, many houses give candy to trick-or-treaters. There are scary activities around Halloween including haunted houses. Some people have Halloween parties. On Halloween death is feared.

Symbols

Jack-o'-lanterns

Jack-o'-lanterns are traditionally carried by trick-or-treaters to scare off evil spirits. Today, families enjoy carving pumpkins.

Ghosts and Witches

Ghosts represent the dead. It is thought that a witch's powers are strongest on Halloween. Both ghost and witches are meant to be spooky.
