February 1: National Freedom Day

On February 1, 1865, President Abraham Lincoln signed a resolution that later became the 13th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. This amendment abolished slavery. Now, February 1 marks this anniversary. A former slave named Major Richard Robert Wright, Sr. proposed to have a day when freedom for all Americans would be celebrated. On this day, many people reflect on the importance of freedom and equal opportunity. The President of the United States may issue a proclamation.

February 3: National Women Physicians Day

Female doctors have had a huge impact on science and medicine. February 3 is the birthday of one of these amazing physicians, Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, who was one of the first women to receive a medical degree in the United States. Blackwell earned her degree in 1849 and paved the way for other women in the medical field. This day celebrates women in the medical field and raises awareness to improve the workplace for women physicians entering medicine. While the number of female doctors is increasing, studies show that female doctors earn less than male doctors.

February 10: National Umbrella Day

Did you know that the word umbrella comes from the Latin word “umbra”, which means a shade or shadow? One of the very first umbrellas was invented over 4,000 years ago. Artifacts of these basic umbrellas have been found in China, Greece, and Egypt. It was the Chinese, however, who first thought to put wax on their paper umbrellas to help keep them dry in the rain.
