

VIRTUAL BIOGRAPHY

Cheryl & Reggie Miller

Coaching and Commentating

Although she couldn't continue playing, Cheryl has remained passionate about basketball all her life. Since 1986, she has been a sports commentator and analyst, an assistant coach, a lead coach, and a general manager for the WNBA.

Following in his big sister's footsteps, when Reggie Miller retired from the NBA, he became a sports commentator and analyst. Unlike his sister, however, Reggie has never coached. Cheryl and Reggie remain two of the greatest and most inspiring basketball players.

If you could meet Cheryl Miller or Reggie Miller, which one would you choose, and why?

Would you like to be a professional athlete? If so, what sport would you play, and why? If not, why?

Sports Stars

Integrates Reading Skills

Who Are Cheryl & Reggie Miller?

Cheryl and Reggie Miller are siblings! They grew up in a family passionate about basketball and they both became professional basketball players! Cheryl Miller is considered by most to be one of the greatest female basketball players of all time. She elevated women's basketball as a competitive sport and proved that women were just as good, if not better than male players during a time when people thought otherwise. Reggie, Cheryl's younger brother, is also considered one of the greats! For many years, Reggie was the NBA's greatest long-range shooter. Let's learn more about them!

©Julia Becker

Engaging & Educational Media

College Ball

Cheryl graduated high school as a 4-time state champion and 4-time All-American player. colleges pleaded with her to join their teams. Cheryl chose the University of Southern California, with the college team to the 1984 Summer Olympics, winning a gold medal. Watch the video to learn more about Cheryl's college basketball accomplishments!

Critical Thinking

Getting Into the Game

Reflect on Cheryl and Reggie's early experiences with basketball. How were they similar? How different? How did they support one another, and how did sibling competition impact them?

Interactive Exploration

Writing

Reflection

In the space below, reflect on Cheryl and Reggie Miller as siblings and as basketball players. How would you feel if you and your sibling shared a passion for the same thing? What would that be like for you?

Cheryl

Reggie